The News Letter Journal, a 124-year-old, independently owned, award-winning, weekly community newspaper located in the Black Hills of Wyoming, seeks a motivated reporter who is ready to learn every aspect of the community newspaper business from a decorated editor and publisher while working alongside a close-knit veteran staff.

The successful candidate must be a solid writer who is ambitious and eager to develop the skills that will allow him/her to use news and opinion writing to guide a growing community towards a more prosperous future. This is no desk job, as any capable small-town reporter must be involved in all aspects of the community and determined to become the trusted, go-to source of information and knowledge for its residents.

You will develop beats and sources, and be expected to write, edit, photograph and produce anything else needed for the editorial department on a weekly basis. The person who excels in this position will be truly self-motivated because they will also be expected to learn page and ad design, and become familiar with the technology associated with managing the newspapers website.

You must see the value of covering a small, growing and active community with great photography and compelling journalism in a visually pleasing manner. If you believe that all people have a story to tell, want to make a difference in your community, and feel that the work environment should be a positive place to spend your time, then we are looking for you.

The News Letter Journal belongs to a federation of community weekly and daily publications with 22 titles located in Colorado, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Washington, South Dakota, and Nebraska. There is ample opportunity for advancement within our group of newspapers.

Please submit cover letter, resume, writing samples and salary requirements to Bob Bonnar at editor@news1j.com.
