REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS FOR COORDINATION OF A STATEWIDE COLLABORATIVE JOURNALISM PROJECT IN MONTANA

The Montana Newspaper Foundation seeks proposals from an experienced editor or news organization to coordinate an enterprising, statewide collaborative journalism project among Montana's newspapers. The Foundation and the project coordinator will identify key participants in the project, sound them out for potential enterprising topics, and create an inspiring dialogue to bring newsrooms together to determine the ultimate focus and the specific components of the project. With substantial input from collaborators, the Project Coordinator will ensure the project parameters and ultimate goals of the work are clearly defined and formally documented. The Project Coordinator will then oversee the collaborators' work, coordinating the collaborative efforts leading up to wide publication of the content created. The coordinator will produce regular progress reports for the Foundation and a final report summarizing the work completed and detailing the outcomes.

BACKGROUND
In October of 2017, the Solutions Journalism Network launched the Montana Gap Project, a collaborative effort among 12 Montana newsrooms that produced two feature packages of news content. The first package, published in January of 2018, consisted of 27 stories focused on rural economic development. The second package, published in July of 2018, included 16 stories highlighting mental health treatment. A follow-up survey of participating newsroom audiences showed that people who had read "Montana Gap" stories were "significantly more likely to say the trusted their local paper's coverage—and that the paper helped people get involved in community issues."

In January of 2019, the SJN approached the Montana Newspaper Association to form a partnership to expand the Montana Gap Project with the support of the LOR Foundation and a grant from Kendeda Fund. The vision for the expanded project calls for broader participation from Montana's newsrooms and the development of durable relationships and expertise that could provide the basis for ongoing, collaborative, solutions-oriented journalism projects in a similar vein. In June of 2019, the Montana Newspaper Foundation, the 501(c)(3) arm of the newspaper association, entered into an agreement with the Solutions Journalism Network to oversee expansion of the Montana Gap Project with the hope of building the capacity for ongoing, collaborative, solutions-oriented reporting across the state. The Foundation seeks a Project Coordinator to effectively lead the initiative and invites proposals from experienced editors and new organizations to oversee the effort.

ANTICIPATED WORK
Project Scoping
The Foundation and the Project Coordinator will convene a working group of newsroom collaborators to determine the project focus and parameters. The Foundation and the Project Coordinator will identify key participants in the project, sound them out for potential enterprising topics, and create an inspiring dialogue to bring newsrooms together to ultimately determine the focus and the specific components of the project. The Project Coordinator will ensure the project parameters and ultimate goals of the project are clearly defined and formally documented. Oversight of Content Creation and Publication
The substantive goal of the project is to publish significant, influential, enterprising journalism across the state of Montana, and the Project Coordinator will oversee the reporting done by the collaborators, ensuring they stay on schedule, produce high quality work, and maintain a cooperative spirit. The Project Coordinator will ensure successful publication of the content created to maximize potential benefit to Montana newspapers and Montana citizens. Recommending Potential Subgrants

As the project develops, the Foundation anticipates that key collaborators will pursue additional grants to defray direct project expenses. The Project Coordinator will invite collaborators to submit grant requests, evaluate the grant requests, and make grant recommendations to SJN. The SJN shall make final decisions on grants, and it will administer those awards independently. Reporting Progress and Outcomes
The Project Coordinator will provide regular progress updates. The Project Coordinator will submit a formal report at the project's mid-point and provide a final report on the project's successes and failures. PROJECT SCHEDULE
Sept. 30, 2019: Project parameters established and clearly documented
Nov. 1 - Mar. 31, 2020: Articles published
Apr. 30, 2020: Final report to SJN, including recommendations, if any, on longer-term strategy
PROPOSAL REQUIREMENTS
Applicants should submit proposals to mtgibson@mtnewspapers.com by Friday, July 26, 2019. Proposals will be evaluated according to a combination of technical merit and a well-articulated understanding of the Foundation's aspirations. Proposals should include the following components:
· A summary of relevant experience, with a suggested emphasis on collaborative enterprise reporting
· Examples of previous work
· An articulate vision for solutions-oriented journalism
· A strategy for convening potential newsroom collaborators
· A strategy to promote the project's published content
Successful proposals should specify that the applicant meets the following criteria:
· 5 years + of producing, editing and publishing enterprising news content;
· Demonstrated ability to work collaboratively;
· Demonstrated capacity to fulfill role of project coordinator
· Access to and knowledge of all necessary software and equipment, including shared communication, word processing and spreadsheet applications.
BUDGET
The Foundation has budgeted $27,000 for coordination of the project. Subgrants to collaborators would potentially provide additional financial resources over and above the project coordination budget.
ETHICS
The project coordinator will pledge to conduct the work in a professional and ethical manner at all times, including a commitment to truthfulness and accuracy.
QUESTIONS
Please submit any further questions to mgibson@mtnewspapers.com
The Montana Newspaper Foundation will not pay for the development of proposals. Submission of a proposal implies no guarantee of subsequent use, and does not prejudice any future work undertaken by Montana Newspaper Foundation.
